Soybean crop great!

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

There is a good soybean crop this year. Prices will probably be lower than last year, but most expect them to sell around $7.00. This could hinge on what happens in the next 10 to 14 days in the Midwest. Sub-freezing temperature could cause prices to rise slightly.

The current misconception of soybeans is that once the pods are formed the yield is made. Nothing could be further from the truth. Soybean yields will continue to increase until the tithe that the beans reach their maximum weight. The period of podfill is probably the most critical in the life of the soybeans.

At the point of physiological maturity, food movement ceases and further time in the field is a drying process. When this occurs depends on the environment and the genetic make-up of the variety. Usually 20 - 30 days will be needed before the plants are dry enough to combine.

Again this year there is a 50 bushel club. We have never had an entrant, but we have had yields of 50 bushels plus.

If you are interested, our office must be notified 15 days before harvest. A three acre block from a field of at least 10 acres is to be selected. An Extension Agent or his representative must be present at harvest. Area must be measured. Supervise the weighing on state inspected scales. Collect a 15 pound sample.

Each contestant producing 50 bushels or more will receive a plaque. The top three producers in the state will receive other recognition.

Please give us a call if you are interested.

There is a relatively new vaccine on the market that provides immunization of cattle for Vibrio and Lepto. We are recommending this rather than just Lepto alone. Providing for as much protection as possible is just good business.

Boric acid is an effective control material for roaches. Use a plastic squeeze bottle--similar to what is used in restaurants to dispense catsup and mustard.

Apply the boric acid along the shoe mold in closets, pantries, under the sink. Boric acid is not a fast killer, but it is effective for a long time and a very safe material to use.

If the roach population is high, the kill can be sped up by "trapping" the insect. Clean out a small area under the sink and in the pantry. Put down a newspaper and slice an uncooked white potato. Put it in the center and make a circle of boric acid around the potato. Seems that the potato is a favorite for food and water. The insect moves through the boric acid to and from the source of food and water.

By adding 7 pounds of ammonia per ton of corn silage the protein can be increased 3 to 5 percent. This means less protein concentrate to be fed and the feeder reduces feed costs. We hope to get some of this started next summer.

It's time to fertilize the home lawn. They need 1 ½ pounds of nitrogen now and 15 pounds 10-10-10 in mid-October per 1000 square feet.

Now is a good time to begin planning the fall control of weeds--a combination 2, 4-D plus Dicamba does a good job. Read the label and apply while the temperature is 60 degrees plus.

Alfalfa should not be cut after October 1.

Plant winter crop now

If the home vegetable garden is almost finished for the season, it is time to think about planting a winter cover crop.

Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf said a cover crop such as oats, annual rye or winter wheat will serve several functions in the garden.

"It will add organic material to the soil, hold nitrogen that might leach from the soil during the winter and loosen heavy soils," said the specialist.

"Also, it will reduce erosion from water or wind and offer protection from the wind for spring seedlings if it is left in the space between the rows of vegetables late in the spring," said Ms. Relf.

The cover crop can be sown from late summer to fall, depending on the type selected.
